Beautify Waco Committee Formed

WACO

Mrs. Carroll W. Sturgis, chairman of the Beautify Waco Committee, has named a dozen members to assist her and vice-chairman Hilton Howell. The committee has been designated as the instrument of the Chamber of Commerce's Environmental Task Force to launch a concentrated effort toward civic beautification in Waco. Definite plans for planting and maintenance will be developed before support is sought from the city, the state, highway department, garden clubs and civic groups.

Council Passed Resolutions

GEORGETOWN

The Georgetown City Council passed two resolutions, one giving Urban Renewal the right to receive bids on lots in the Urban Renewal Area and the other a resolution to apply for government funds to remodel the Community Building in San Gabriel Park. The Council hopes to receive a government grant with a 'string' attached that two or three government buildings be housed in the building, possibly the Social Security, welfare, or other locally operated agencies.

$80,000 Grant Given

HEARNE

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has authorized a contract in the amount of $80,000 to the Hearne Housing Authority to complete a previously approved program to modernize 120 dwelling units. Work will be under the supervision of V. D. Ramby, executive director of the authority.

Constitutional Revision Planned

CALDWELL

Clint Lewis, Burleson County rancher and Caldwell real estate broker, last week attended the first meeting of the local citizens advisory committee on Texas Constitutional Revision Committee. Mr. Lewis was named to the advisory committee by Robert W. Calvert, former Texas Supreme Court Justice and chairman of the Revision Committee. He will assist in constitutional revision.

Temple Designated Bicentennial

Temple has been designated a national bicentennial community, it was announced in Washington. Temple was one of eight cities so designated. The Bicentennial Commission has planned projects to include a railroad museum, civic center, tree planting and parks and festivals. Bicentennial projects are classified as Heritage '76, to preserve the heritage of the nation; Horizons '76 planning for the future; and Festival Open House.

Milano Tax Raised

MILANO

School tax valuations will be raised by one-third at Milano according to action taken by the Milano school board. Supt. R. L. Porter said this is the first increase in school taxes Milano has had in about five years. "Everything we buy is up about 50 percent and something had to be done," he said. He also added that it was hoped the increase would allow for the upgrading of the schools. He said the board of equalization will meet July 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

Summit Improves Relations

By Ralph Harris

SAN CLEMENTE, CALIF.

Reuter -- The summit between President Nixon and Leonid Brezhnev has been followed quickly by U.S. efforts to reassure uneasy NATO allies and China that their security will not be harmed by improving U.S.-Soviet relations.

Jubilant handshakes and broad smiles exchanged by the President and Brezhnev when their talks ended at the Western White House here were met by a wave of suspicion--notably from France--that big-power diplomacy was dividing up the world and ignoring the security of other countries.

To counter this impression--which Nixon and Brezhnev failed to dispel in public declarations during the summit--U.S. diplomacy is now in high gear with the aim of persuading allies and others that the end of the U.S.-Soviet Cold War enhances the prospects of world peace for all without abandoning friends.

The start of the American drive was signalled when French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert conferred with Nixon and presidential adviser Henry Kissinger here on June 29 and was urged to abandon any apprehension that the United States was working behind the backs of its NATO partners.

The meeting -- held after Brezhnev flew from Washington to Paris to give similar assurances to French President Georges Pompidou -- was followed on the following day by a conference here when President Nixon asked permanent NATO representatives to trust him and disabuse themselves of any thought that he was weakening the alliance.

Kissinger is now preparing to fly to Peking to explain to Chinese Prime Minister Chou En-Lai the results of the U.S.-Soviet Summit and to tell him that peaceful co-existence and agreements to improve relations between Moscow and Washington do not affect Nixon's efforts to reach new understandings with China.

The presidential adviser stated here with great emphasis that the Chinese-embroidered in bitter ideological and border disputes with the Soviet Union and openly fearing a Russian nuclear attack--have no reason to believe that Washington and Moscow are ganging up on them.

At issue is the agreement between Nixon and Brezhnev to prevent nuclear war through urgent consultations on any international crisis.

Peking, as well as other countries, could well suspect that this declaration and the extremely friendly atmosphere surrounding the U.S.-Soviet Summit reflect an intent to carve the world into spheres of influence in the name of nuclear-peace-keeping, observers believed.

Kissinger insisted that the opposite was the case, especially where China was concerned.

A military attack on China from any source would threaten international peace and security and do violence to the U.S. concept of the agreement under which the President and Brezhnev pledged to reduce the risk of nuclear war, he said.

At the same time, Kissinger admitted that "There is an increasing uneasiness--all the more insidious for rarely being made ex-PLICIT--that super-power diplomacy might sacrifice the interests of traditional allies."

His cure as far as the NATO allies are concerned was to re-emphasize the U.S. proposal that the United States and Western Europe should agree on a new declaration of principles to guide their future relationship and ease fears that Washington, in its anxiety to come to terms with Moscow, might weaken its defense commitments to NATO.

The reaction in Western Europe to the summit is a greater worry to the administration than the Peking. The Chinese leaders so far have not commented on agreements reached by President Nixon and Brezhnev.

France has already indicated a belief that the nuclear understanding of the U.S.-Soviet Summit is aimed at weakening its own independent nuclear force. It has also reacted sourly to the agreement by Nixon and Brezhnev that talks between NATO and the Warsaw Pact on troop reductions in Central Europe should begin Oct. 30 and that an East-West Summit might be held to ratify agreements reached at the conference on European security starting in Helsinki next week.

All these reservations--reportedly felt in varying degrees in other NATO capitals--could complicate Nixon's planned tour of Europe this year, although U.S. officials believe the trip will do much to set Europe's fears at rest.

The U.S. position is that Nixon is neither trying to undermine Europe by making deals with the Russians or to blackmail it into making trade and other concessions in return for the defense umbrella provided by the United States.

Milam County Aids Gas Demand

The petroleum industry in Milam County played a significant role in 1972 in helping to satisfy the unprecedented demand for Texas' crude oil and natural gas.

Milam was one of 190 of Texas' 254 counties which produced oil and gas valued in excess of $100,000 in a record production year for the state's No. 1 industry, according to figures compiled by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

The county ranked 175th in the state in the value of petroleum produced, $644,000. The sale of crude oil brought most of that total.

But despite this record year, due in large part to nine months of production at 100-percent of the maximum efficient rate, the nation's largest producer of petroleum could not produce enough to satisfy demand.

"To further stimulate production, we need a restoration of the open market force," said Robert A. Buschman of San Antonio, president of the Association.

The study by the Association also shows that production last year in Milam County resulted in the payment of $80,000 to royalty owners.

The state of Texas received $29,700 in production taxes from county wells, with most of that based on crude oil output.

Oil and gas producers and developers spent $752,000 drilling 20 wells in the county last year, with $229,000 of that figure lost in seven dry holes.

According to the Texas Employment Commission, 186 oil and gas industry employees worked in the county in 1972 and shared a payroll of $817,000.

Hwy Contracts Awarded In Milam Co.

Contracts for highway construction in Milam County have been awarded by the Texas Highway Commission. The work will be under the supervision of District Engineer Joe G. Hanover.

H. D. Riddle Construction Co. of Dallas was awarded a contract to replace two bridges and approaches on 0.3 mile of Farm To Market Road 1600 in Milam County. Low bid was $56,260.45.

The project extends between 1.0 mile south of FM Road 845 and 2.4 miles south of FM Road 845. Delton A. Kittrell of Hearne is the highway department engineer in charge of the project which will take an estimated 50 working days.

Rogers IF Forming, Taking New Members

Rogers, Cameron's neighbor to the West, is taking a first step toward an industrial foundation although it's originators say public support must be voiced by August 1 or the effort will be dropped.

"The Roger's Industrial Foundation is not yet an official organization, said Wayne Cornelius, temporary chairman of the group.

According to Cornelius, there have been three meetings of mildly interested people. "At the last meeting we decided that if we were to become an organization, we would have to have a membership of 20 by August 1. If we don't have 20 members by August 1, we will forget it and refund the money," he said.

Cornelius explained that memberships were $50 each and associate memberships carried a fee of $10 per year. Anyone can be an active member or an associate member. Active memberships carry full voting privileges while associate memberships entitle the holder to attend meetings and discuss but not vote.

"We're not soliciting memberships. We feel people must be interested and want the Industrial Foundation or else it's not worth pursuing. We want to bring industry to Rogers but if the rest of the people aren't interested, we're not going to push," concluded Cornelius.

Now 'Of Minimum Basics' With F.M.L.

In learning of an imminent 33 percent increase of Milano Independent School District evaluations, I could not help but recall the exchange during proposed consolidation of CISD and MISD.

That effort was soundly defeated in Milano on the premise that valuations were considerably higher in the CISD and misinformation that all Milano schools would be closed.

It carried in Cameron, as did the first Maysfield consolidation proposal. This effort failed in Maysfield, but was overridden last week by Milam School Board action, finally bringing Maysfield's infinitesimal eight-grade system into CISD.

The school realities of 1970 are even more real in 1973. Milano has saved on its property taxes, which will continue to be lower by valuation and, therefore, payment in actual taxes. But the Milano system, like many others in Texas of its size, still has 15 to 20 courses fewer than AA or AAA high schools like Yoe High School.

The Milano P-TA was kind enough a couple of years after the Milano-Cameron consolidation proposal to ask NOW to speak to this subject. I brought up the question of technology and how many Milam Countians, for example, work at Alcoa, or in some other plant where technical skills are needed.

Cameron has since brought in at least one additional plant, about to open, and another one, presumably larger, is getting a labor survey for employment in the Cameron area.

The talk then was about modern education and what it is doing to all schools, not just Milano or just Cameron. I think the talk ended by my saying something like: "I wish it were not so, but it is."

The talk now is still modern education. And the question among property owners in the smaller districts, as well as large, must be what are our kids getting for our school dollar? As the tax loads approach similar size, the larger district will be giving more for approximately the same school tax dollar. Comparisons are tough, and I have stepped across numerous lines to make them, present them, hear them.

Newspapermen are not always heard, or read, when they might be, but the facts have a way of stacking up until they sort of tumble over a wall, say of indifference, or crack a dike and shatter the whole wall.

Like every other school's, Milano's costs are up 50 percent. Supt. Porter says he hopes to upgrade the school with additional tax support which will not be one-third more in actual taxes. It is the first increase in five years.

I hope Milano can upgrade. I hope Cameron can upgrade. The growth factor is here in the Cameron-Milam area. And I hope a principle of "basic minimums" which applies to growth situations like Cameron will somehow be understood in Milam and other districts.

It was finally understood in the question of Maysfield and Cameron.

City Council Approves City Rec Director

The city council approved the hiring of Ed Cauley to be city recreation director following presentation of the proposal at a regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Forrest Sapp and Gene Smitherman appeared before the council and Sapp outlined duties and responsibilities of the recreation director. His program will include all organized and unorganized sports in the city and will be for children from first grade through high school.

The director's salary will be paid from revenue sharing funds, and he will also plan a program for next summer, starting as soon as school dismisses.

Council approved a special use permit for placing a mobile home on Karnes St. Mayor Gene Blake said that the city Planning Commission needs to make recommendations on these permits, and set some kind of standards for the homes.

The city had re-advertised bids for a water line in the urban renewal area, but there were no bids, so the city water department will take on the job, hiring additional workers for the job.

Also discussed by the mayor was the need for a program centering in the Community Center to involve the aged and low-income residents in the housing units.

A delegation of residents asked the council to pave North Houston Street past 15th, where the pavement ends. They were told to get up the money for the paving and curb and gutter.

Carl Sims of the Central Texas Council of Governments appeared and outlined recommendations for the city's record keeping on personnel.

Also heard was a report on urban renewal by A. W. McCullin.

Engram Named Board President

Mrs. Perry Holder is vice president, Mrs. Dan McDaniel, secretary and Stewart Perkins, treasurer.

Mrs. Ed Magre, a new board member, is in charge of memorial donations.

The board approved the 1973-74 budget.

Rep. Kubiak On 'Top 10' List

State Rep. Dan Kubiak was selected one of the ten best legislators by Texas Monthly, a slick new magazine of comment and features published in Austin for urban circulation.

Listed as the best ten legislators were: Kubiak, Neil Caldwell of Alvin, DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi, Ray Hutchison of Dallas, Bill Meier, Euless, Hawkins Menfee, Houston, Max Sherman, Amarillo, Jim Wallace, Houston, Craig Washington of Houston and A. R. Schwartz, Galveston.

Citizens Celebrates Birthday

Anton Reinsner, Mrs. Willie Randerman and Archie Prokisch have been the recent winners of $50 savings bonds from the Citizens National Bank during their 73rd birthday celebration.

The birthday celebration began June 11 and will close next Tuesday. Bond winners have been selected each Friday.

Governor Announces Field Office

Governor Dolph Briscoe announced Friday he will initiate a new Mobile Field office as an extension of the Governor's Office sometime in July.

The Governor's Mobile Field office will be located in every County seat in the State at least one day during the coming year and will be staffed on an alternating basis by the top members of the Governor's staff.

Governor Briscoe said whenever possible he himself will staff the Mobile Field Office.

Addressing the County and District Clerks Association in Corpus Christi, the Governor said, "We will be in the communities for many purposes. We will be there to listen to what the public has to say...to answer questions...and to help inform the public on matters of special interest to their communities."

Gov. Briscoe pointed out that "the doors to this office will be open to everyone. The public will be encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity to communicate with their government."

Among other assignments, those staffing the office will help to inform the public of ways and means of conserving energy; will establish face to face communications with local governmental officials; and will search for ways of improving the overall delivery of government services to the communities, the Governor said.

"By establishing this close link to the people in the Governor's Office, it is my belief that the Governor's office will be in a better position to serve all the people. The Mobile Field Office will be an instrument which will make State Government more accessible and more responsive to the public we all serve," the Governor said.

Job Survey...

For the continued basic growth in Cameron and Milam County, we join Cameron Industrial Foundation in inviting a broad listing of employees in the following skills:

- Mechanics
- Welders
- Structural fitters
- Structural layout workers
- Electricians
- Trainees (in above)

Information on qualifications should be mailed to CIF, Inc., P. O. Drawer 432, Cameron 76520.

Town Meeting ...

The first town meeting in almost a year is scheduled by the City Planning Commission to invite inquiries into community planning.

Date is 7:30 p.m. July 19, a Thursday. It would seem it is an effort to open communications between the plans group and citizens who might wonder about any new projects or suggest some new ones.

Nothing was said in pre-meeting information about

This industrial possibility will create new employment, should it choose the Cameron area. We are pleased to know we are found a good location for industry, an experience that has occurred three times in the past four years.

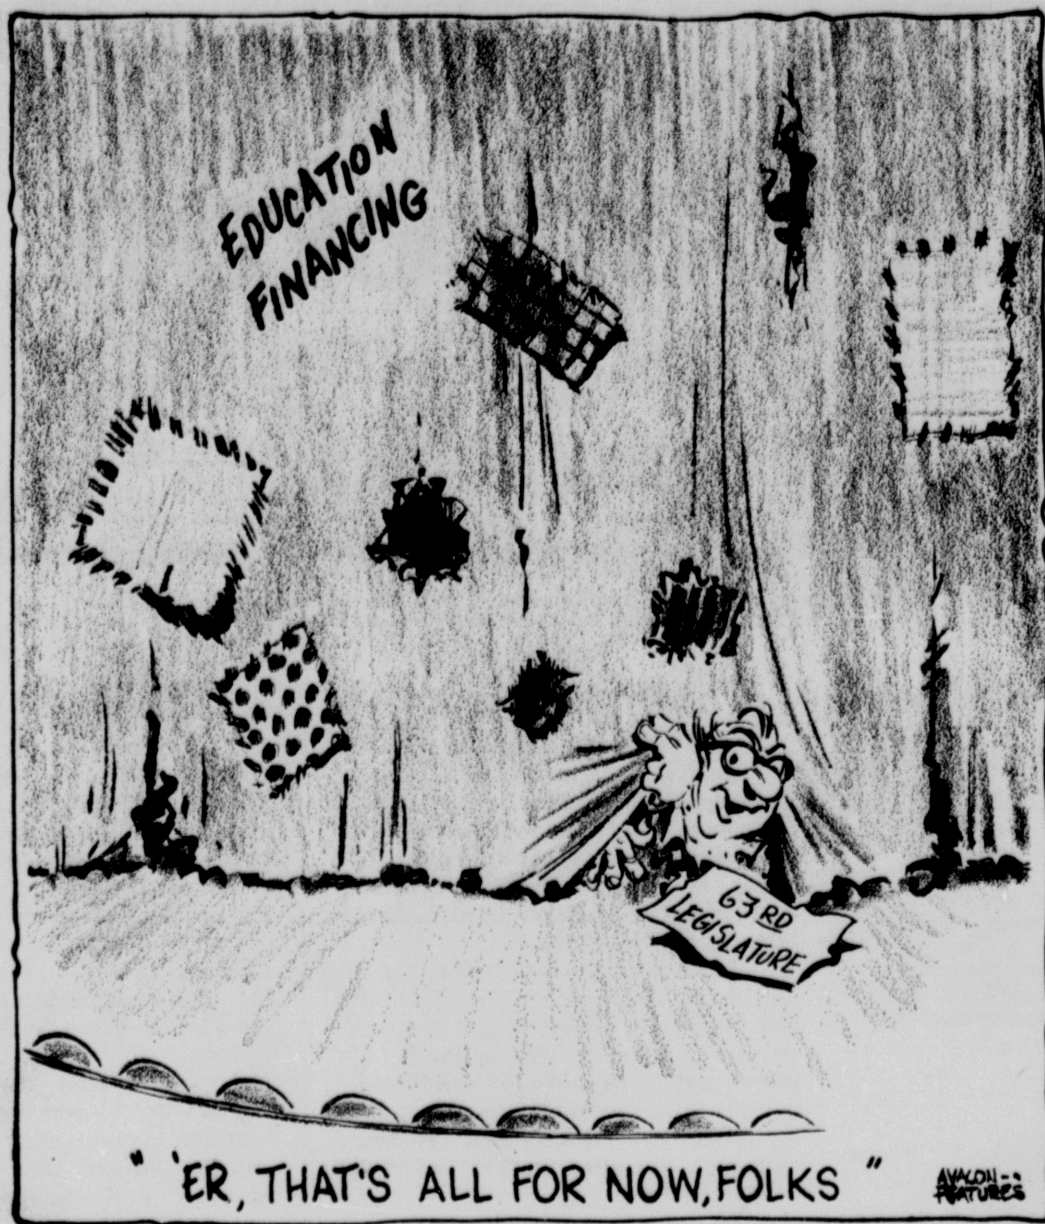

Let's help in this industrial survey and make it easier for the CIF to assist this industrial prospect in making Cameron its home for investment and employment.

It couldn't happen at a more opportune time.

new projects. It is presumed some will be introduced and questions sought from visitors.

Last town meeting was in the fall when the school board sought to explain a proposal for the first CISD bond issue.

It is always a good idea to keep communications open and to invite new interest in continuing projects, which in this case is the continued improvement of Cameron and the Milam area.

"ER, THAT'S ALL FOR NOW, FOLKS"

Small investors -- the backbone of Wall Street -- have been abandoning the Stock Market in ever-growing numbers in recent years according to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen who has asked the Senate Finance Committee to investigate.

"Under our economic system, businesses and industries use one of two methods to obtain capital, or financing. They either borrow the money, or sell equity in their companies through the stock market.

"Over the past 10 years, however, there has been a significant, disturbing change in the make-up of the Stock Market," Sen. Bentsen said.

"Ten years ago -- in 1963 -- the individual investor accounted for 65 percent of the dollar value of trading volume on the New York Exchange. Today, though, he accounts for less than 30 percent of the trading."

Sen Bentsen said that for practical purposes, the small investor has left Wall Street. His place has been taken by the big institutions -- mutual funds, the insurance companies and the trust departments of banks, with their large pension funds and other capital to invest.

Banking Change Could Boost Rural Communities

COLLEGE STATION

A recent lending change in the Federal Reserve System could be a boon to the rural economy of Texas. The change could make an estimated additional $1 billion in loanable funds available to Texas residents from the state's rural banks.

Called "Seasonal Borrowing Privilege," the change is designed to help rural banks expand loan fund sources where the local economy has a seasonal loan need, such as with grain sorghum, cotton, wheat or rice production, points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Rural banks experience wide fluctuations in loan demand from area farmers, and when such loans reach a seasonal high, other legitimate community loan needs must often be denied," notes the Texas A&M University specialist.

Hayenga contends that the

be used for consumer credit purposes as well as local and area economic development.

The "Seasonal Borrowing Privilege" could affect an estimated 334 rural banks in Texas, more than one-fourth of all the banks in the state. To be eligible to use the borrowing privilege, banks must be members of the Federal System.

In addition to rural areas, the change may also increase loanable funds to banks serving communities with other types of seasonal needs for funds, such as resort areas.

Additional information can be obtained from the Federal Reserve Bank or from the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, D. C., adds Hayenga.

Highway Department Works To Produce Safer Roads

AUSTIN "Why doesn't someone do something about highway accidents?"

The simple answer: Someone is. Many someones are doing many things about making highways safer.

Take the Texas Highway Department, for example.

There are three main factors in highway safety -- the driver, the vehicle and the road. The Highway Department can't do much about the first two, but making highways safer is right down their alley.

Unfortunately, the current problem is not so much knowing what to do as it is having the money with which to do it. Still, there are some dramatic advances toward safer highways that are saving lives daily along Texas highways.

The best place to see what the Highway Department is doing is to look at the results of the Department's research program. The Highway Department has been involved in seeking better materials, techniques and designs for highways almost since its beginning.

By 1954, the search for solutions had become so large that a full-time research section was organized in the Department's Highway Design Division.

The section oversees Texas highway research by the Department and agencies such as the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M University and the Center for Highway Research at the University of Texas, in cooperation with the Federal Highway Administration.

The list of highway safety advances is impressive. Some, like the breakaway sign support, originated in the Texas Highway Department itself.

Some safety advances are obvious.

Take lane widths. In Texas, the standard lane width for a multi-lane highway is 12 feet. It is 13 feet for a two-lane highway. That's an extra margin for safety.

That's not all. Almost two decades ago, Texas highway engineers decided that the shoulders also should be paved.

It also helps eliminate "drop-offs" often encountered at the edge of the pavement where shoulders are not paved. In an emergency, the shoulder provides the driver that much more recovery room. And, there is another play, the paved shoulder helps keep moisture from under the pavement. And water in the road base causes pot holes in the pavement.

Golf Ball Bags Bird

Would you believe a birdie in mid-air? During the July 4 golf tournament at the Cameron Country Club, William Kelm scored a birdie just that way. Hitting his second shot onto No. 2, his golf ball and a small bird collided 20 or 30 feet off the ground, killing the bird and Kelm's drive as well.

New England States Plan Bicentennial Celebration

By Paul Giguere

BOSTON

Reuter -- The six New England states are stepping up their plans for a two-year bicentennial celebration that is expected to attract millions of visitors starting in 1975 and continuing through 1976, the 200th anniversary of the nation's birth.

The first major harbinger of the American Revolution celebrations will be the arrival next month from Thisted, Denmark, of a replica of the brig Beaver, one of the three ships involved in the famed Boston Tea Party of 1773.

Built at a cost of $350,000 by Boston Tea Party Ship, by Boston Tea Party Ship, Inc., a private corporation, as a contribution to Boston's bicentennial celebration, the Beaver 11 will be anchored in Fort Point Channel where it will be on permanent exhibition.

The ship will be the main attraction of "Tea Party Weekend" next Dec. 14, 15 and 16 commemorating the first open act of rebellion against the British crown by colonials protesting payment of taxes with representation. The rebels invaded the Beaver and the two other vessels and dumped overboard their cargoes of tea (from China).

Unfortunately, visitors will not be able to see the actual site of this historic act. It is buried under fill and that supports Boston's southeast expressway.

Famous Faneuil Hall, where such patriots as Sam Adams, James Otis and John Hancock kept burning "the fires of freedom," will be the focal point of this city's celebrations.

Still standing near this old revolutionary meeting place, in the dock square market district that has been almost smothered by skyscrapers, is the weathered old red brick state house. Also nearby is a circle of stones marking the spot where British troops fired into a street mob in the so-called "Boston Massacre."

While gaining Beaver 11, Boston almost lost another seagoing bicentennial feature -- the USS Constitution, a warship built at Harbors Shipyard here in October, 1773, and which went on to score some notable victories at sea in the war of 1812.

Berthed at Boston naval shipyard since 1893, where she has been rated New England's top historical attraction as the world's oldest commissioned man of war afloat, "Old Ironsides" is undergoing a 4. million dollar overhaul scheduled for completion in the spring of 1975.

Recently, congressional sources reported requests from other states to berth "Old Ironsides" on the Potomac River in the Nation's capitol, at Portsmouth, N.H., or at a naval museum being built in South Carolina, when the refurbishing has been completed.

However, Rear Adm. Richard E. Rumble, commandant of the first naval district that includes Boston, assured that the ancient warship will remain in Boston for the bicentennial celebrations. In addition, he announced that a USS Constitution museum will be prepared at the Boston naval shipyard supported by public donations from throughout the United States.

A non-profit charitable organization, said Adm. Rumble, will seek "to preserve forever in this port city the historic artifacts and related maritime documents and paintings related to Old Ironsides."

Long on imagination, if short on cash because of meager federal, state and city appropriations, celebration committees plan to make extensive use of historical sites for staging revolutionary war era events.

"After all," said one planner, "what better props can you have than the real thing?"

An attempt to increase the extent of real memorabilia, rather inexpensively, is under way at Narragansett Bay, Rhode Island, and may pay off in time for bicentennial observances.

Marine scientists from the University of Rhode Island have begun a project to recover priceless relics from the wrecks of the British warships Carverus and Lark in the east passage of the bay.

CARPET BEETLE DAMAGE

Carpet beetles can damage home furnishings, fabrics and most clothing and stored food if not controlled, says an entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The tiny beetle larvae may be found behind baseboards, molding and radiators and in floor cracks, corners, and clothing and dresser drawers. A thorough cleaning with the vacuum cleaner is the best control tool.

Columbia's Emerald Mines Riddled With Corruption

By Enrique Sanchez
BOGOTA
Reuter--A group of businessmen driving on the main road north from the Colombian capital of Bogota were flagged down by what they thought was a military patrol.
The 30 men stepped out of their cars. Four of them were machine-gunned to death, and 10 others were seriously wounded.
The "military check point" was manned by gangsters dressed as soldiers.
This incident in May was just the latest in a series of mafia-style killings connected with Colombia's multi-million dollar emerald industry which police sources say accounted for an estimated 500 murders last year alone.
Police later arrested a number of the survivors, who had themselves been robbed of the equivalent of $150,000 for alleged emerald smuggling and illicit dealing, police sources said.

The businessmen had been making for the emerald-rich province of Boyaco, 200 miles northeast of here, to purchase some of the precious stones in clandestine markets, the sources alleged.
"Colombia's emerald industry is riddled with corruption and bullets," one observer said.
Three years ago the state took over Colombia's two most prestigious mines, Muzo and Cozcuez, but after a series of disasters the state intends to sell them back to private enterprise.
Despite the rich deposits of high quality stones at Muzo and Cozcuez, the state's share of the export market plummeted to a fraction and during the state's tenure 15 employees were murdered.
"The state's pulling out because the mines are too hot to handle," the observer commented.

An estimated 20,000 soldiers were sent in to police the province, but they were unable to control the near-lawless mines.
Boyaco has colossal untapped reserves of emeralds, and legal exports of stones found in the region are expected to reach a record $60 million mark this year to rank Colombia as the world's first exporter of emeralds.
But it is a sparse mountainous region and one of the poorest on the continent.
The five major mines in Boyaco employ about 30,000 people, and there are thousands of others who flock there in the summer months scratching the ground and river beds for the one stone that will change their lives.
The root of the lawlessness in Boyaco is a gang known as the "Guaquero."
They run protection racket syndicates, and, unless a prospector has prepaid his "subscription," if word gets round that he has found a good stone the chances are that he will either lose it or his life.

The "Guaquero" have also penetrated the isolated miners camps. They have large cash reserves and can frequently persuade miners to smuggle out stones for a generous pay-off.
There are numerous cases of soldiers being bought off and observers say that the "Guaquero" had infiltrated the state mines so completely that they had a virtual control of production.
"The Guaquero make normal business deals lethal and nearly impossible," one state official said.
The sparseness of the region and lack of staple food products also encourages crime and gang warfare.
"A good plate of chicken and chips is worth more than a man's life up there," one retired prospector said.
"The trouble with Boyaco is that there's too much money to be made too quickly. Law will only return when the emeralds have run out," he said.
of taxation, the committee found that the small farmers -- those with 1,000 acres or less -- and the homeowners along with the small businessman were carrying the major segment of the tax load and simply cannot stand too many more tax increases.

Comments From Chris

By Chris Laws

Many consumers find selecting a cantaloupe difficult or confusing. Just keep the word "HAND" in mind and you can pick out a reasonably good sweet melon. Each letter in "hand" represents an important selection factor.

H -- for heavy. Look for a melon heavy for its size.

A -- for aroma. Check for a fragrant aroma.

N -- for netting. Select well-netted melons. Netting is a normal growth characteristic for most varieties.

D -- for depression. Choose a melon with a depression at the stem end. This depressed scar -- where the melon joined the vine -- means it was left on the vine until practically mature.

Softness at the blossom end doesn't necessarily indicate ripeness or sweetness -- several other customers may have tried this "technique" before you and bruised it.

COLLEGE STATION Dreamers are a necessity if a society is to flourish -- or if a child is to have full opportunity for creative growth and expression, one authority said recently.

Jane Fleischer, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, termed dreamers "creative people."

She cited qualities creative people and children share -- advising parents to use them as guidelines or goals. "Creative people are idea explorers and original thinkers who tend to have imaginations and like to dream."

"They're the people in society who make things meaningful and beautiful."

"Children are dreamers and possess imaginations until adults force the demands of reality on them."

"There are ways, however, of allowing a child to imagine and still develop a sense of reality," the specialist stressed.

"They should be allowed to find out for themselves what will -- or -- will not -- work."

"With children, as with adults, we know that much of the meaning in new thought is developed through exploration and experimentation."

"Children need materials and the opportunity for creative experimentation. Many of these materials will be art or craft materials. Others may be odds and ends left over from adult projects."

"We also know there is seldom only one right way of doing something."

"Even if children make mistakes, failure is often a valid learning experience. Creative exploration can be encouraged -- and a child's efforts should be valued, never ridiculed," Miss Fleischer said.

"Creative people are self-confident. They believe in themselves and their abilities. They may not be positive they can finish a task, but they're usually willing to try."

"They're often independent and prefer to do things on their own. They show a good deal of autonomy and self-reliance.

"These people aren't afraid to have emotional reactions and to talk about them," the specialist said, pointing to expression of feelings and perceptions as another trait of creative adults.

"It's easy to see the same type of honesty and openness in children, who express, as best they can, exactly what they're feeling and thinking."

Admitting it's often embarrassing to parents when a child does voice his perceptions, she counseled parents at such times to discourage self-expression.

"The child will gradually learn some of the rules of social interaction, but he must not lose his openness and spontaneity," she emphasized.

Continuing, she noted that creative people are sensitive to aesthetic stimuli around them.

"They're aware of beauty in nature and man-made things. They have a feeling for harmony and rhythm and enjoy music and dance."

"In addition, curiosity is one of the best indicators of creative potential. Children's natural curiosity should be stimulated and encouraged."

"A curious child is actively involved in exploring and expanding his world -- he is learning while developing awareness and creativity."

TJC Sets Registration

Pre-registration for the second summer semester classes at Temple Junior College is now underway in the Registrar's Office at the College. The office will be open weekdays from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. for pre-registration.

Registration, payment of tuition and fees, is scheduled for July 16. The Registrar's Office will be open from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. for registration on that date.

Classes will begin on Tuesday, July 17. Late registration for the second summer session will continue until 4 p.m., Thursday, July 19. The second summer session will end on August 24.

TCT To Stage Season Opener 'Renaissance'

The opening of the Temple Civic Theatre's production of "Renaissance" July 20 will mark several firsts for Central Texas theatergoers. "Renaissance" is a new play and will make its world premiere in Temple, giving audiences an opportunity to see the first performance of the play ever given. Written by Lloyd Gold, it is a sensitive story of two unique men set in the Renaissance period.

"Renaissance" also is the first production of the theater's upcoming season and will be the first ever presented by TCT on a special thrust stage.

Since "Renaissance" is a new play and has not been produced before, the playwright has come to Temple to be on hand for rehearsals and the performance. Working closely with the director, he is rewriting and polishing the script as it comes to life for the first time.

Goodwin describes "Renaissance" as a "very colorful and explosive story of conflict between two men, both giants in their own way." Although based on historical fact, "renaissance" is not like other period plays which are often "long-winded with actors strutting about in robes and being very pompous," he said. "It overcomes all that and is a fast, furious, contemporary play."

Gold, 22, is playwright-in-residence at Brandeis University. "Renaissance" is his first play and he has since written two others. "Renaissance" has been enthusiastically received by those who have read it and was recommended by Earl Graham, a successful playwright's agent.

Of the playwright, Goodwin said, "I think he's somewhat of a prodigy," noting that it is very unusual for a young writer to have the sensitivity and insight shown in the play.

The cast which calls for 20 men and one woman, is working from the original script in preparing the production. Gold works on the script during rehearsals.

"Renaissance" will be presented at 8:15 p.m. July 20, 21, 26, 27 and 28 at the Cultural Activities Center in Temple. Reservations may be made after July 16 by calling the box office, 778-4751 or 778-8722 in Temple.

BANKING CHANGE

A new "Seasonal Borrowing Privilege" is designed to help rural banks expand loan fund sources where the local economy has a seasonal loan need, such as with grain sorghum, wheat, cotton or rice production. The lending change in the Federal Reserve System could make an estimated additional $1 billion in loanable funds available to Texas residents from the state's rural banks, says an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Henderson On UT Grant

William Lloyd Henderson, Rt. 1, Burlington, is one of a group of 37 undergraduates at the University of Texas pursuing a wide range of research interests through a special grant program established by UT student government. Hendersons research project is development of games as a teaching device and stimulator of social interaction among socially retarded children.

Fishing Guides

Fishing guides are indispensable to many anglers. Research by Mercury outdoors' fishing department reveals that guides charge from $40 to $50 a day for their services, but the range of services varies greatly from one part of the country to another. While most guides are fair-minded and only interested in seeing you have fun, it is a good idea to establish an understanding between you before leaving the dock.

You should determine, for example, what is a fishing day? Some guides say eight hours, while others operate from sun-up to sundown.

What about the guide fishing? Some anglers don't want their guide to fish, while others feel it is perfectly correct.

And what about keeping the fish you catch? Full stringers have long been considered the mark of success, and some guides may not recognize that many anglers today are not interested in keeping all their catch.

Most of these questions can be answered in a few minutes of discussion with your guide. The Mercury fishing staff suggests you ask the marina or resort operator to introduce your guide, and the two of you settle upon the day's fishing while enjoying an early morning cup of coffee. You'll have more fun and earn the guide's respect as well.

GSPA Asks For Points In Constitution

Grain Sorghum Producers
Association represented agricultural interests at an open hearing of the Texas
Constitutional Revision
Commission. Service Director for GSPA, Y. F. Snodgrass, testified before the hearing in Abilene on June 21.

Snodgrass requested that two main points be written into the new Texas Constitution. He asked that land used for agricultural purposes be taxed only on an agricultural basis. According to Snodgrass, "If a parcel of land is annexed by a city and continues to be used exclusively for the production of agricultural goods, then it should be taxed only under the provisions set up for agriculture."

The second request on behalf of agriculture was for underground water rights to remain with the owner of the land. Snodgrass asked the Commission to "keep the provision that entitles the owner of the land to also be the owner of the underground water, whether he is a home owner, businessman or producer."
